Overcrowding.

Courses for student dietitians were discussed by Miss Mame T. Porter, Director of the Dietary Department, Toronto General Hospital. She touched on the present overcrowding of the profession, and the need for an adequate means of measuring the suitability of the student. The internship in a hospital, she felt, should be longer, to permit an adequate grounding in all departments. Mrs. Burns of the Toronto General Hospital presided at the afternoon session.

Following a delightful luncheon in Eaton's—College Round Room, Miss Kathleen C. Burns, Director Dietary Department, Hospital for Sick Children, spoke on courses for student nurses, and Mrs. Doris McHenry Congratulations were extended Mr. Sydney Levey for his work as director of the dramatic section, which is presenting a play April 20.

SWIMMING PROGRAM

An unusually interesting program was given by the students of the Margaret Eaton School at the annual swimming demonstration last evening. Formation swimming, fancy and stunt diving, strokes for style and a demonstration of English and American life-saving methods, all showed skill and careful training. The demonstration of a beginners' first lesson was particularly interesting. Unique features on the program were the water "pyramids" and the game of push ball. The demonstration was under the direction of Miss Mary Thompson.

Milne, which is to be presented by the Dramatic Section of the Toronto Branch of the Overseas League, April 20.

The bridge held by Uplands Golf and Country Club at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Landell, Whitney Avenue, last evening was a delightful event. The hostess was assisted in receiving by Mrs. G. Howard Armstrong, resident of the ladies' section, and Mrs. F. J. Elkerton, social convener. Talsman roses made an attractive centre for the supper table at which Mr. A. Sharp and Mr. Newton Richardson officiated. About twenty tables were played, after which dancing was enjoyed.

Shadow of herself on the screen upon which reflects her grotesque gestures in silhouette. The Three Sailors share spotlight honors with Miss Hall. Bert Mason, Bob Robeson and Harry Blue compose the trio. A flash act is presented by Beatrice Stone and Matt Gibbons. Next comes Senator Murphy, "The People's Choice." He is not interested in making laws. He was elected by the people for the people to legislate laughs, and he has done it so successfully that his large constituency maintained him in office for an indefinite term. Klutznig's Animal Stars, with the four leaping felines, templates the KO vaudeville portion of the program. The story of a child's great love is told in "No Greater Love," the screen feature at Shea's. Dickie Moore, Betty Jane Graham, Alexander Carr, Jerry Mercer and Hobart Bosworth are all seen in never-to-be-forgotten performances.

TIVOLI TODAY AND NEXT WEEK.

"War Correspondent," at the Tivoli theatre this week, has as star players that favorite screen team, Jack Holt and Ralph Graves, who have made so many sensational successes. "War Correspondent" presents a new screen object, the colorful and dangerous occupation of the newspaper war correspondent—that glamorous character whose methods and experiences in getting news is little known—is given prominence that has long been his due, but which he has failed to get from the screen up until now. Lila Lee is seen as the woman between. The loyal following she established before the illness that took her from the screen for over a year, are flocking back to see her in the thrilling role of Julie March, a beautiful young girl who "follows her army" for fun, and arouses the flaming jealousy of the two men. Miss Lee is her charming self again, and sweeter than ever. Smash situation follows smash situation. Wise-cracking, oving, hating, fighting!

A Ripley "Believe It Or Not" special is an added feature, with the surrounding program of features.

AT LOEW'S.

Long waited for its first Toronto showing at popular prices, the most-talked-of talkie, "Grand Hotel," opened to capacity audiences yesterday at Loew's. Of course, the paramount interest to the picture-going public is the tremendous cast. Think of Greta Garbo, John Barrymore, Joan Crawford, Wallace Beery, Lionel Barrymore, be obtained from the Department of University Extension, Room 222, Ontario Hall, Telephone Broadway 5611 and ask the University's telephone operators for the Department of University Extension.

MAKE APPLICATION IN ADVANCE.

Lewis Stone, Jean Harsholt and a host of other well-known players in a single cast. They are all there, but you are scarcely conscious of the unusualness of it. They belong there, and, having witnessed their superb characterizations, you cannot imagine the picture being made without them. That is ample justification for M.G.M.'s unprecedented daring in placing so many golden eggs in one basket, so to speak. Greta Garbo is Orulinskaya, the temperamental ballerina; John Barrymore is the titled thief, who steals her game—and love as well; Joan Crawford is the ex-appealing stenographer, whose charm causes the downfall of Freysing, industrial magnate, played by Wallace Beery. Lionel Barrymore is the sick little factory clerk, who goes to the Grand Hotel to spend his last days in splendor. Stone is the doctor, and Harsholt, the chief porter. "Grand Hotel" is not just another movie. It is a distinct accomplishment.

"THE FAITHFUL HEART"—IMPERIAL.

In "The Faithful Heart," the screen feature at the Imperial Theatre this week, Victor Saville, director of "Sunshine Busie," has given us something of which the screen of today stands in very real need—a sincere story of a love that rose above self, and its effect many years later upon the life of the beloved—a film with so charming a theme, so beautifully expressed and so sincerely presented, deserves the world-wide popularity that it is receiving. Herbert Marshall and Edna Best are co-starred. The whole production has an atmosphere of friendliness and simplicity that is as delightful as it is disarming. It deals with the gentler side of life, but a side that will have an enormous appeal.

Johnny Burke, comedian of the stage and screen, and Nina Olive, equally famous as a stage personality, are co-starred in "Rookies," the Imperial stage revue.

For supplements this week there are Slim Summerville in a highly amusing comedy adventure; besides other screen featurettes and a last-minute news-of-the-world flash, with music and sound.

Brotherly Greeting For Mrs. Herridge

Ottawa, Dec. 29.—Just another brother-and-sister greeting occurred at the Union Station today.

"Hello, Dick," called out Mrs. W.

"Take the powder off your nose," Prime Minister Bennett replied, jocu-

JOHNSON ADVOCATES MUSIC FOR CHILDREN

Guelph-Born Tenor Urges Teaching in Schools
as Essential

With something possibly of the same virtuosity for which he is famed in opera—but translated into the art of the speaker—Edward Johnson, in an address at the Empire Club luncheon yesterday impressed his message for the teaching of music in the schools as one of the essentials of life on a large and distinguished audience in the Royal York Hotel.

This famous son of Guelph, who spoke on the subject "Music in a Disordered World," disclaimed at the outset any intention of advancing a panacea for present troubles, but indicated his activities in endeavoring to put music in the schools on the same basis as arithmetic as an essential of life.

Mankind had in its development neglected the sense of hearing and had used the eye far more as a medium of understanding. Our hearing, he averred, had probably far less acuteness than that of primitive man and we should try to reacquire the sensitiveness of hearing. For this there was probably no better means than through music. He indicated the value of music, not so much as a profession, but in its development of personality, as a requisite to culture and mainly as a stimulus to the mind and imagination. The cultivation of beautiful minds in our children was desired and the best way was to present them with beautiful thoughts. Music's peculiar quality was that it stirred the imagination.

In conclusion the speaker declared that of all the arts none was so universal and simple in its appeal as music. "Music," he said, "has indeed been called the language of the universe and its function in life as normal and natural as speech itself."

Lieut.-Col. George A. Drew, in in-
